Whistles and Tall Foxtails

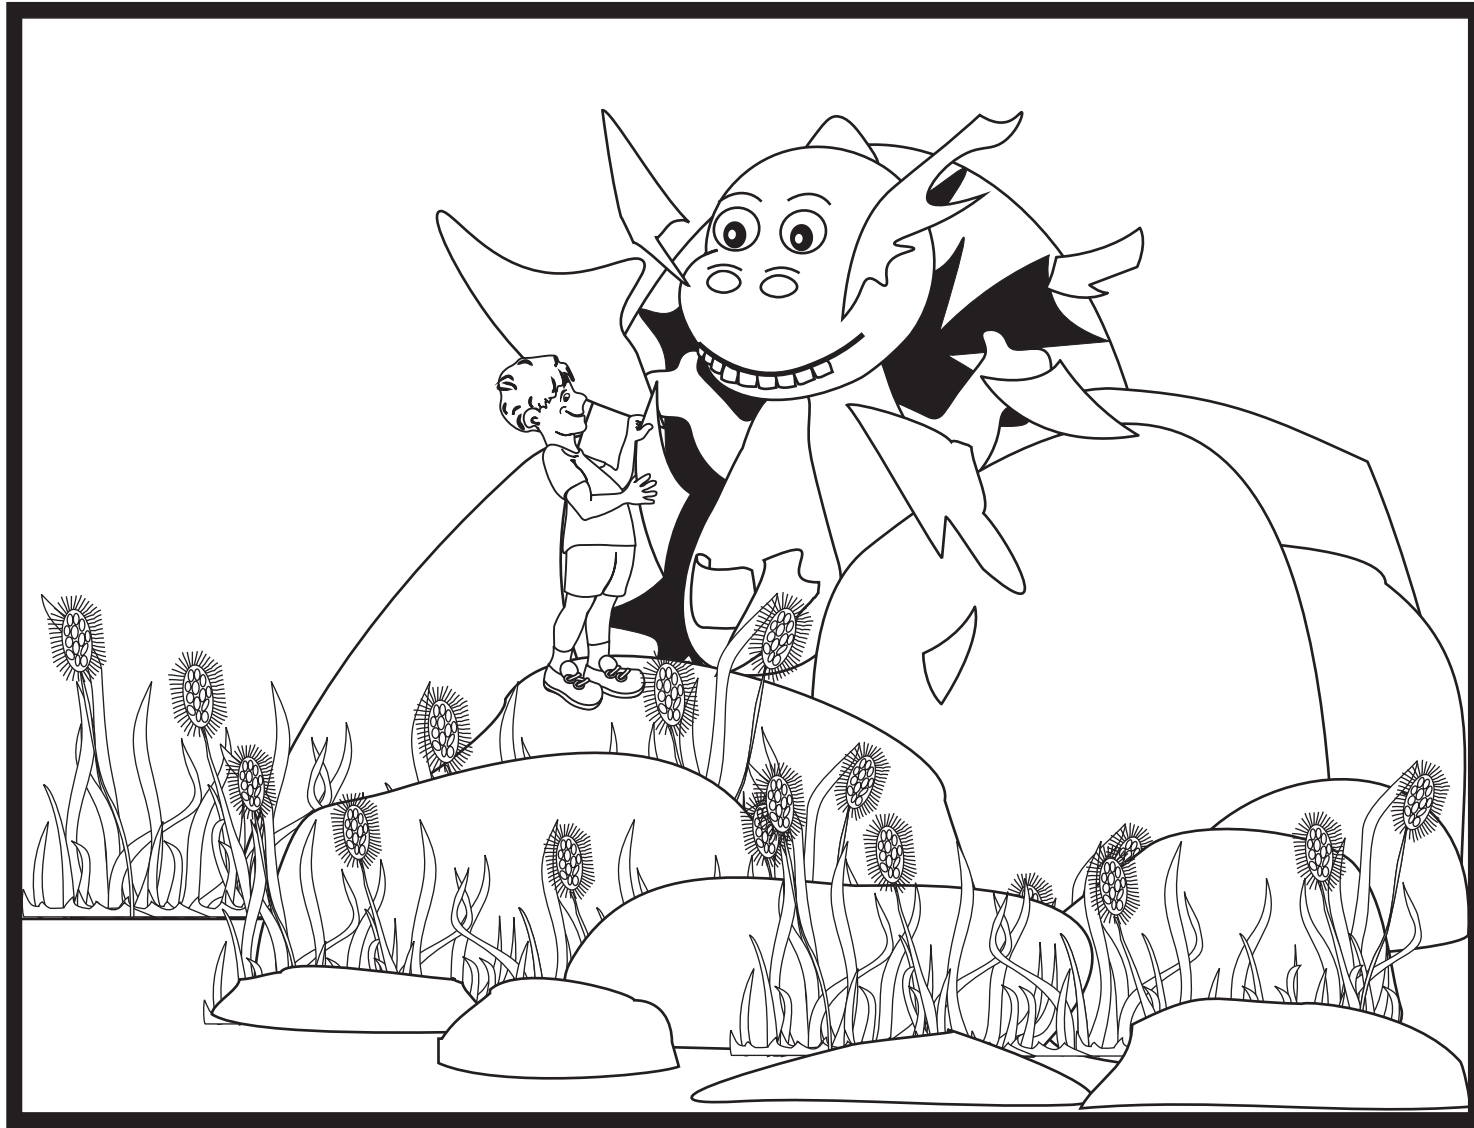

Once upon a time Audrey and Austin were picking fox tails. Austin was climbing over all the wonderful rocks when he heard a voice, "Excuse me." He looked around but saw no one.

"Here, I'm in here!" The voice said again. Austin saw an eye in one of the rocks. "Run!" screamed Austin as he ran by Audrey. "There's an eye in there!" "How can I be in there, when I'm clearly out here?" Audrey said.

So the Eye pushed and Austin pulled. All of a sudden out popped a huge orange and yellow creature. He looked like a dinosaur but he was covered in....pockets!!!

"I'm Mercy, the Pock-A-Dyne. Thanks for helping me out. I'd better be going on my way," responded Mercy hardily.
"I have to go discover my Pock-A-Dynosty."

"How will we find you?" "Oh, that's simple," said Mercy.
"Just blow this whistle one time and I'll be back in a flash."
Audrey put a foxtail in one of his pockets.

"And remember, blow the whistle just once, and I'll be back in a flash! Goodbye for now!" Mercy waved as he waddled into the tall foxtail. "Goodbye, Mercy!"
